STRANDED STEAMER.

The Largest Vessel on Lake Erie Probably Lost.

RESTING FAR UP ON A BANK.

One Hundred and Fifty Passengers on Board, but All Will Probably Be Rescued—As to Saving the Steamer There Is Little Hope—Falls on Board of the Vessel.

AMHERSTBURG, Ont., Aug. 30.—The new passenger steamer Northwest of the Great Northern railroad line stranded at Bar Point light on Lake Erie, about two miles from the mouth of the Detroit river, yesterday afternoon. Dense smoke from forest fire lay on the surface of the water, completely obscuring the lightship maintained by the government at that dangerous point. The steamer ran out 100 feet forward and as she draws but 14 feet of water, she lay on a shoal of sand and gravel, the air by the tremendous shock of her striking.

The Northwest left Buffalo Tuesday night, bound for Duluth, with about 150 passengers. The passengers were nearly all on deck, along the sides of the smoke to catch the first glimpse of land on this side of the lake, when suddenly the steamer struck on the bar 500 feet west of the channel. The boat was going at a tremendous pace and the momentum forced her far on the bank.

In the confusion the cry arose that the steamer had struck the rock and was sinking. Instantly panic reigned supreme. People who were able to rise to their feet ran hurriedly around the steamer shouting and begging the crew to lower the lifeboats.

Word was immediately sent here of the Northwest's plight and the tug Home Rule and Wales at once started to her assistance. All the passengers are well and none of the crew were hurt. The Northwest is the largest boat on the lake, and cost more than twice as much as the other new boats on the water. She is valued at about $800,000.

HIGHLY PLEASANT TRIP.

Report Judge, Received in Throwing the Hugs California Giant.

One of the most remarkable timber belts in the world stands in Humboldt and Mendocino counties of this state, says a California exchange. It embraces 4,125 square miles, containing 132,000,000,000 feet of timber. With the aid of the microscope scientists have found the age of some of these trees to be nearly 8,000 years. Some of the fallen trees have remained where they fell from 800 to 1,000 years, so it is estimated, with scarcely any deterioration of the wood. Eastern tourists in California know little of these redwoods (Sequoia sempervirens). They usually see the few mammoth redwoods as Calaveras (Sequoia gigantea), and go home and tell their friends about this disappearing tribe of giants.

It is done by the most expert choppers. This man must have excellent judgment as to the lean of the tree and its other peculiarities which may affect the direction of the fall. He drives a stake 100 or 150 feet from the base of the tree and prepares a level bed in a direct line from base to stake. On that line the tree must fall. I know of nothing half as good for the beauty of the complexion and the beauty of the human body as sound, sweet oranges. The fruit is the very best. GRAND STAND BURNED.

Big Fire at the Race Ball Park this Morning.

The ticket office, a section of the bleachers and a portion of the fence destroyed.

Faurot's ball park was the scene of a serious fire this morning.

About 10 o'clock an alarm of fire was sent in from box 18, at the corner of Market street and Jameson avenue. The central department turned out and upon arriving at the box found that the grand stand in Faurot's ball park, was in flames.

The stand was outside the corporation, but a line of hose was laid from the corner of Spring and Cole streets, but, although the hose wagon was emptied, the line was about two hundred feet too short to reach the fire, and consequently the water was not turned on.

By this time the grand stand, the first section of bleachers south of it, the ticket office and the fence from the main entrance for a distance of fifty feet east of the northwest corner, were completely enveloped in flames. The firemen, armed with hooks and axes, cut a section off of the fence at each end of the fire and tore down a number of seats nearest the entrance, which effectually stopped the progress of the flames, but the grand stand and a portion of the seats and fence were destroyed, and now a pile of ashes is all that remains.

The fire is supposed to have been started by a number of boys, a crowd of whom have inhabited the grand stand almost every day this summer, playing cards and smoking.

Whether or not the stand will be rebuilt has not been decided. Several boys were seen about the park a few minutes before the fire, and it is thought they knew something of its origin and an effort is being made to locate them.

While Driving a Load of Nitro-Glycerine in Wood County.

About ten o'clock Tuesday night Geo. R. Potter, of this city, who drives a nitro-glycerine wagon for the Ohio and Indiana Torpedo Co., was driving along a country road a short distance this side of Van Buren, Wood county, when he was suddenly struck on the head by some instrument which rendered him unconscious.

The last he remembered was of his two dogs, on the wagon with him, barking furiously. When he regained consciousness some time afterward he was lying by the roadside guarded by the dogs and the team and wagon load of glycerine standing near by.

That he was hit with something, by whom and also the motive of the deed, is a mystery. He sustained a very bad wound on the back of his head, and came home this morning.

Mrs. N. A. Kridler Badly Hurt in the C. H. & D. Yards.

She was Climbing Over a Train When Her Dress was Caught and She was Thrown Violently.

About 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, Mrs. Kridler, wife of brakeman N. A. Kridler, of the C. H. & D., was seriously injured by falling between two cars in the sidetrack near the C. H. & D. shops.

Mr. and Mrs. Kridler recently came here from North Baltimore, and have been boarding at Mrs. S. P. Edsell's, No. 686 North Jackson street. Yesterday their household goods arrived and they were preparing to go to housekeeping on North Union street. Mrs. Kridler, in company with Miss Mary Shields, was on her way to Union street, when the accident occurred. The two ladies were going across the C. H. & D. tracks and, finding their way blocked by a freight train, waited for some time, then concluded to climb over.

F. & S. Sons paved Baymiller street, using the Hallwood block, which has made no better showing than the Claytown.

Both of these contractors gave bond for the faithful performance of their contracts and agreed to keep the streets in repair for five years.

They have not answered the notice of the B. of A. requiring them to make repairs, and it comes the interesting development. Upon the completion of a paving contract and the acceptance of the street by the city the contractor is paid for his work, with the exception of 10 per cent. of the amount due him, which is retained to pay for whatever repairs may be necessary.

Usually this amount is touched, and at the end of the repair term is turned over to the contractor intact.

Ten per cent. of the cost is considered ample to pay for the repairs during the first five years.

It is now maintained by the contractors for Lion and Baymiller streets that the city can confiscate this 10 per cent., but can hold them liable for nothing more. They claim that their bondsmen were released from responsibility as soon as the streets were accepted as satisfactory.

GOING TO PIECES.

Cincinnati's Brick Paved Streets Crumbling.

Contractors Willing to Let the City Have the Ten Per Cent., as that is the Extent of Their Liability.

The city of Cincinnati is having a sad experience with her paved streets, and the Engineer this morning says the contractors are getting ready to evade the responsibility, and that the city itself may go "busted," as the streets are going to pieces right and left.

There has been much discussion of the miserable condition of Lion street including the Hallwood block, laid in Cincinnati for $1.05 and bid in here at $2 per square yard. The Engineer says:

The widespread and surprising failure of brick street pavements in Cincinnati promises to have a costly sequel in the courts.

There has been much discussion of the miserable condition of Lion street including the Hallwood block, laid in Cincinnati for $1.05 and bid in here at $2 per square yard. The Engineer says:

Now, however, it is learned that

Mott street, which was paved less than two years ago, and the Eighth street viaduct, which was opened to traffic only a few months ago, are rapidly falling into the same condition as Lion and Baymiller streets.

What is worse is that there is a fair prospect that nine-tenths of the cost of putting these streets into condition will fall upon the city.

It has always been a matter of the letting of a brick pavement contract that "tests don't amount to much."

The argument is that the contractors, furnishing bond and agreeing to keep the street in repair for five years, could not afford to use faulty materials. Such conditions as these some contractors in the letting of the streets which have gone to pieces. The flooring of the viaduct is the plainest example of absolute failure of materials.

A BROKEN WHEEL.

Mr. Boyzell Gives His Version of That Sunday Collision.

He Says the Blame upon the Wheelman, Who, He Says, Took too Much of the Road.

Editor Times-Democrat.

I noticed Tuesday evening's issue of your valuable paper, an article—"Demolished the Wheel"—in which Charlie Nye was the rider of the wheel, and myself and family the occupants of the surrey to which the horses were hitched, one of which demolished the wheel. I beg to make some corrections in the statement and set this matter before the public in its true light, as it is of great importance to many of us to know if we are allowed on the public highway on Sunday at all.

Judging from the number of wheels and the impertinence, recklessness and the speed some display in passing over the wheels, it is a privilege they should have the earth on that day, at least. We narrowly escaped with our lives. This reckless wheelman fled not when he saw the team frightened at his rapid approach, but held his track, which was the west wagon track of the pike running past Dr. Hower's and north a few steps from road leading off to Shawnee church. He was going south and we in the opposite direction. My son, upon my warning, had turned out until we straddled the right and east wagon track. As the rider approached nearer the team, the more frightened they became, and when within about ten feet the near horse became unmanageable and pitched off to the right, then re-bounded. As the wheelman flew by, the horse kicked the wheel with one foot or struck it with his front foot, I am unable to say, but he was so frightened that he did not know what he was doing, and the wheel was knocked from under him and the rider fell in front of his wheel on the wagon track he was riding in, opposite the hind wheel of the surrey. At this time our horses were so badly frightened that they were making desperate efforts to get away from my son, who was sitting in the seat of the surrey, and the sign of the wheelman and assisted in making the situation, but not until several desperate efforts were made by the team to get away—leaving the pike and almost plunging into the fence, breaking one end of the main leaf on the spring. Having mastered the affair, I called to him to get up. On learning, to my great satisfaction, he was not hurt, but that his wheel was badly sprung, and for this we deeply regret, as we afterwards learned who he was, being acquainted with his parents, and am quite sure if he had been in line with what they taught him, he would not have met with an accident. And while I sympathize with him in his loss as much as one, I don't feel that I should be held accountable for his mistake, as he had fully four feet where his wheel was to the edge of the grass and quite level to the fence, forming no level to pass, even if he had not given him half the road, any way. All my horses, the rest, in particular, which my wife used for her driving horse, is spoiled, perhaps, for all time to come as a family driving horse, and a broken spring on the surrey is my loss, and if there was any squealing to be done I have the greatest cause for so doing of the two. I felt that the surrey was right to approach the wheelman, but he was not, and got a hard fall and had broken his wheel, I withheld that part of the program and drove on, thanking our Maker that we were all spared from what might have been much worse for us all.

A WOMAN HATER DISCOMFITED.

He Had Reason to Forget Adding a Question About Eve.

There is a crusty old bachelor on Fourth street who is a confirmed woman hater and who never misses an opportunity for saying something sarcastic and disagreeable about the fair sex. But he met more than his match the other day in a plucky little woman, who, metaphorically speaking, wiped up the earth with him, much to the delight of his friends, who were greatly amused at his discomfiture.

The old bachelor inquired why, when

Eve was announced of a spare rib, a servant was not made at the same time to wait on her. The little woman responded promptly: "Because Adam never read the newspapers until the sun got down behind the palm trees, and then, stretching yawned out, 'Isn't supper most ready, my dear?' Not he. He made the fire and hung the kettle over it himself. I'll venture, and pulled the redskins, peeled the potatoes, and did everything else he ought to do."

"He chopped the kindling, brought in the coal and did the chores himself, and he never brought home half a dozen fried fish to dinner when Eve hadn't any fresh pompanos."

The little woman stopped a moment for breath and went on with renewed vigor: "And Adam never said out till 12 o'clock at a political meeting hushhah for some candidate and then shouting because poor Eve was sitting up and crying inside the gates. He never played billiards, rolled tennis and drove fast horses nor choked Eve with cigar smoke."

"He never looked around the corner groceries and saloons while Eve was rooting Little Cain's cradle at home. In short, he didn't think she was especially created for the purpose of waiting on him and wasn't under the impression that he'd disgraced a man to lighten a wife's care a little. That's the reason that Eve didn't need a hired girl, and with it is the reason that her descendants do."

She drew another breath and was about to continue, when the bachelor pulled his hat down over his eyes and sneaked away amid the laughter of the crowd.—Louisville Post.

prisoner had received a good character, "Gentlemen of the jury, this is a case of a very honest gentleman who has stolen a horse."

RESIGNED.

Superintendent Grady, of the L. E. & W., Steps Down and Out.

His Act was Foreshadowed in the Times-Democrat Local and General Railroads News.

The rumor to the effect that there would soon be a change in the transportation department of the L. Mr. Grady's resignation takes effect on September 1st, at which time he will be succeeded by S. B. Kramer, of Muncie, now superintendent of the Ft.
